

Prince Philip Cooked Hamburgers

Eager Trout Leaped Right Onto Dock for Queen

This is the text of press officer Esmond Butler on the royal couple's activities Monday at Pennask Lodge.

By EDMOND BUTLER

It has been a wonderful day and I think the Queen and Prince Philip have enjoyed it thoroughly. The Queen and Prince Philip got up early and directly after breakfast went riding with Col. Nicholas Van der Vliet and a cowboy by the name of Pat Wright. They rode through the woods and were out for about 40 minutes.

On returning Prince Philip caught several fish from the dock but he and the Queen were ready to believe the fishing was really good when one jumped right out of the water and landed on the dock near the Queen. Everyone thought it was a great joke and Prince Philip finally threw it back because it was under a pound.

About mid-morning the Queen and Prince Philip set off in a motorboat to fish. At 1 p.m. PDT they and the household met for a barbecue lunch on Belle Island. Prince Philip had the barbecue going when we arrived and cooked delicious hamburgers, sausages, and later we cooked some of the trout we had caught, in tinfoil. Very good they were, too.

Several other guests joined the party uninvited. A red squirrel came and took all the food that was offered to him and fed from the hand. He stored the food in various places and then came back for more. Several whisky-jacks (grey and white birds) then arrived. After being given food, some by hand, they then stole some of the squirrel's cache and eventually made off with buns left unguarded on the table, much to everyone's amusement.

The Queen and Prince Philip have shown great interest in the wild life on the lake, the loons, the ospreys which have a huge nest on top of a branchless dead pine tree, squirrels and chipmunks.

Both the Queen and Prince Philip caught several good fish today as did members of the household, the staff and the pilots.

Constable Dead

Crash Helmet Tragic Failure

Crash helmets issued to city motorcycle police June 29 as a safety measure failed tragically Sunday in their first test when a 29-year-old constable sustained fatal head injuries in a collision.

Earle Doyle, father of three children, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 5:25 p.m. yesterday, almost 21 hours after the collision occurred at the intersection of Douglas Street and Francis.

Witnesses said police Const. Doyle's helmet flew off his head just before he plummeted to the ground, head first. The regulation helmets are secured under the chin by a strap which is attached to the side of the helmet by a single press stud.

COVERED HEAD

Const. Doyle covered his head with his arms as he fell. His death was attributed to excessive brain damage.

The collision occurred between Const. Doyle's motorcycle and a car with Nova Scotia licence plates, driven by Edward G. Whitehouse, 3023 Saanich Road.

Const. Doyle was travelling out of town along Douglas on the centre lane on both sides of the street were halted to allow Mr. Whitehouse, travelling towards town, and another car, travelling out of town, to make left-hand turns across Douglas, into roadside garages.

Const. Doyle's motorcycle struck the front right corner of the car, throwing the young policeman over the top of the vehicle.

An eyewitness, Larry Rose, 2227 Linwood, was in the

Island Climb Ends in Death

Special to The Colonist

COURTENAY — An RCAF helicopter yesterday battled treacherous downdrafts in rugged country 25 miles west of here to bring out the body of a mountain climber fatally injured as he fell and slid more than 1,000 feet down snow-covered Mt. Argus.

Dead is Harry Winstone, 33, of Crofton, a father of two. He was employed as a mechanical engineer by B.C. Forest Products.

Earlier, the rescue helicopter plucked two companions who maintained an all-night watch over his body at the 5,800-foot level of the mountain. Other members of the climbing party made a 16-hour trek, covering more than half the distance over rugged country in darkness, to summon help.

VICTORIA FAIR SAVED

Brought out safely were Paul Martinson, 1149 Oliver, Victoria, and Reginald Knott, 630 Foul Bay Road, Victoria. They were taken to Comox air base near here by helicopter sent from 121 Rescue and Communication Squadron at See Island.

Winstone was a member of the five-man party which planned to make an attempt on nearby Red Pillar mountain. He apparently was attempting to get out of the way of a rock rolling down the mountain when he lost his footing.

He fell 80 feet down a rock face about noon Sunday and then slid 1,000 feet in the snow. Other members of the party said he was probably knocked unconscious as he started the fall and suffered injuries which caused his death several hours later.

Martinson and Knott stayed with Winstone through the night while Syd Watts of Duncan and John Weir, 630 Foul Bay Road, Victoria, started down the mountain.

At the base camp, near Tatnall, they were joined by four other members of the group who had remained there.

One of this group, Arthur Burrows of Chemainus, described the tragedy in these words: "It was awful—something we'll never forget."

Jack Weir of Ladysmith, Ronald Paver of Victoria, and Keith Morton of Courtenay turned back at the 6,400-foot mark. They returned to the base camp set up by Burrows.

Five—all said to be experienced mountaineers—continued the climb. They were within 200 yards of the top of Mt. Argus when the mishap occurred.

B.C. school boards were asked by the provincial government yesterday to put the brakes on new-school programs because of high interest rates.

An order-in-council authorizing the Lillooet school board to present a $301,000 bylaw to the people also contained a

If the name Emanuel Lasker means anything to you, you probably know that he was a chess champion.

But if you would ask Lasker himself what he was, he would have told you he was a philosopher and mathematician. Chess? Oh yes, he played chess but strictly to make ends meet. That he was the world's leading chess player for almost half a century was purely incidental.

There's a new book about Lasker's fascinating life

Still Giant-Killer at 68

He kept the title for an amazing 26 years, until at 53 he lost to Capablanca. But that wasn't the end of his chess career at all. He staged a comeback, and then another. At 68, at the Nottingham tournament of 1936, he still wound up among the winners, together with Capablanca, Capablanca's successor Alekhine, Alekhine's successor Euwe, and Euwe's successor, the present (1959) world champion Botvinnik. Not one of

No System and No Theory

His opponents could never figure him out. He had no system, he left no theory, he was unique. He played every game so as to beat a particular man at a particular moment, uncannily spotting psychological weaknesses and playing wild, immensely dangerous chances.

Afterwards the dumbfounded losers would analyze the games and write despairingly about "Lasker's incredible luck." It wasn't luck, though—it was sheer chessmanship, developed to the point of genius.

Adventure-Filled Career Ends With Death of B. T. O'Grady

One of British Columbia's most colorful careers came to a close Sunday with the death of Brian Terence O'Grady, aged 76, of 2660 Currie.

Mr. O'Grady, father of Victoria city solicitor and prosecutor Terence P. O'Grady, spent 30 years as mining engineer for the provincial government, and came to know the whole province with love and authority.

Member of a military family, Mr. O'Grady was born in India where his father was in command of a British army garrison at Madras. His great-grandfather, William Croker O'Grady of Limerick, Ireland, was the first man to sign on with the newly-formed Irish Fusiliers Regiment in 1793, and later fought with the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsular wars.

THREE WOUNDED

Mr. O'Grady himself served in three wars, leaving home at the age of 17 to fight with the Scottish Horse in South Africa.

He was a graduate of the Royal School of Mines, London, and mined for a time in the Rand district of South Africa before coming to Canada in 1908. After mining for a time in Northern Ontario, he came to Victoria in 1911 as city surveyor.

Treason Charges Dropped in U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U.S. Commissioner Joseph Karesh yesterday dismissed a treason charge against John W. Powell, his wife, Sylvia, both of San Francisco, and Julian Schuman of New York.

The three were charged with treason in connection with publication of the China Monthly Review in Shanghai during the Korean War. They were accused of writing germ-warfare lies about the United States, and with publishing other stories which, the government said, were used by the Red Chinese in brainwashing American prisoners of war.

Magistrate Thomas asked Kurbis.

Boy Bank Teller Walked Out With $72,000 in a Suitbox

OTTAWA (CP)—Two city police inspectors leave here today for San Diego, Calif., to pick up two youths arrested Sunday at the United States-Mexico border with $72,000 allegedly stolen from an Ottawa bank.

Hold at San Diego on suspicion of grand larceny are Richard Boudreau, 19, a teller at a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank in downtown Ottawa, and Gerald Leclerc, also 19, friends for the last 10 years.

Reports from San Diego quoted Boudreau as freely admitting the robbery and saying, in a television interview, that "stealing the money was easy."

Boudreau told of the strategy he employed in getting the money out of the bank.

On weekdays, he said, the money in the teller's cage is checked at 4 p.m. On Friday, however, following the 4 p.m. check, the bank is open again from 4:30 until 6.

"At lunchtime on Friday, I told the accountant I was going out to buy a suit. I brought back a suitbox, but nobody knew there was no suit in it. At 4 o'clock, the money was checked and there was $71,000 and about $4,000 of it was in American bills.

TRANSFERRED MONEY

"Between 5:30 and 5:45 I transferred the money from the cash box into my empty suit box. It came time to knock off at 6. I locked the cash box and took it downstairs into the vault.

"I came upstairs and told the guard I forgot my new suit in the teller's cage, and he said, 'all right, go and get it.' I went into the cage and got the suit box. Nobody looked . . . everybody's in a rush to get home for the weekend, you know. I met Leclerc in my car. He was waiting for me."

Calgary Pair Arrested

Women Bank Tellers Held on Theft Charge

CALGARY (CP)—Two Calgary women, charged with stealing $18,250 Friday from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia at which they are tellers, were remanded yesterday to July 20. They were arrested Saturday in Edmonton.

They are Marina Landyshoff, 20, and Anne O'Donnell, 31, tellers at a downtown branch.

A. M. Harradence, counsel for Miss O'Donnell, said in court he has asked for a police commission investigation into the methods used to question the girls after they were returned to Calgary Sunday.

Miss Landyshoff was arrested at the Edmonton airport while trying to buy a ticket to Toronto. Miss O'Donnell was arrested later in a downtown hotel.

Police in Edmonton were put on the alert after Calgary police said the suspected girls had left Calgary by taxi for Edmonton.

Police said the money has been recovered.

Weakening Experiment

THREE is something strange about the William Head detention camp. Here is a prison that is scarce a prison, set on a lovely sea-girt headland, without the iron bars and stone walls that normally encompass a convict. There are amenities and an atmosphere attuned to the theme of rehabilitation and not punishment. Yet inmates seem to want to run away.

For the third time within the short space of six months there has been a break-out. The convict was soon captured. Capture is inevitable, sooner than later, and this should be obvious to all the inmates. Capture also means deprivation of privileges, an added sentence and a return to the sombre enclaves of a penitentiary.

One could be excused for assuming that either some of the inmates at William Head are psychologically maladjusted or they do not desire rehabilitation and early release, but prefer normal prison routine. If the former, then the selection of inmates for this "open" camp proved more dubious than ever; if the latter, then William Head is no place for them.

A month ago this newspaper commented that many more escapes would induce demands that William

Head be closed, if only because of public unrest in the area. That may yet be too drastic a conclusion, but certainly at the rate prisoners are breaking bounds confidence in the experiment is being gravely weakened. How many more must escape before rehabilitative ideas have to be revised?

It is said now that with the removal of quarantine station personnel shortly a high chain fence across the peninsula can be erected and floodlit at night, and more guards and additional security measures be invoked. This of course will deprive the experiment of its chief value, which was to prepare inmates for re-entry into society as reformed persons by trusting them with a minimum of restrictions. For all of the open-air and camp-like amenities it will in fact be a prison behind a high and well-guarded chain fence.

This could give rise to questioning the wisdom of using such fine scenic property for such a purpose. With the primary rehabilitative aspect removed there will be much less warrant for establishing such a centre at William Head to the detriment of property and living values in the neighborhood.

Humane Slaughter

CANADA'S long-drawn-out campaign for laws to enforce humane methods in the slaughtering of food animals made an important advance at the end of last week when the necessary legislation was presented to the House of Commons in a government bill. Much remains to be accomplished, however, before humane killing becomes a reality. The bill does not set out what methods of slaughter and preparation for slaughter shall be used; it is an enabling act, transferring from Parliament to the government responsibility for the establishment of regulations.

It is to be hoped that the government will act quickly to write the necessary regulations and put them into effect. Efforts towards the elimination of cruelty from the slaughterhouses have been pursued for several years. While Parliament has talked inconclusively about the issue, thousands of hapless animals have been killed and still are being killed under conditions which are a disgrace to an enlightened society.

Admittedly, the problem has been a difficult one for any government because of the fact that certain religious beliefs and practices are involved, but that is no excuse for the perpetuation of cruelty to living creatures.

Everything now depends on the effectiveness of whatever regulations the government agrees to, and the speed with which they are drawn up and put into operation. In the compilation of them the government has been offered helpful recommendations by the Commons committee on agriculture, whose extensive study of methods employed in abattoirs throughout the country led to the conclusion that some practices inflicted unnecessary fear and pain.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and other organizations whose sole objective is improved methods of slaughter will not be satisfied until Parliament's delegated authority is translated into action.

The City's Tribute

ALTHOUGH modest, Victoria's creation of a special scholarship plan in honor of the Queen's visit has been well conceived. Once a year for five years a leading high school student in the Victoria area who wishes to concentrate on teaching physical education will be awarded $250 to help with his continuation in that field at Victoria College. At the end of the period five such scholarships will have been granted in memory of the royal visit, and with an influence extending into the future.

The choice of physical education for the scholarships should provide stimulus in a field which has been somewhat neglected. The teaching of physical education requires specialization, and the number of students who are prepared to devote their life to it has in the past been disappointingly small. The effect of this blows back on the whole of the school system, where a chronic shortage of physical training instructors is now a serious problem.

Victoria's gesture is a worthwhile step in the right direction. If it leads to similar awards in the same field that would be all to the good. Too little attention has been paid in the past to the standard of physical fitness which should be the accepted and normal one for every boy and girl growing up to take part in the life of the nation.

If the City's scholarships are appropriately named it would add to the remembrance of the occasion.

Nuclear Arms Disputed

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

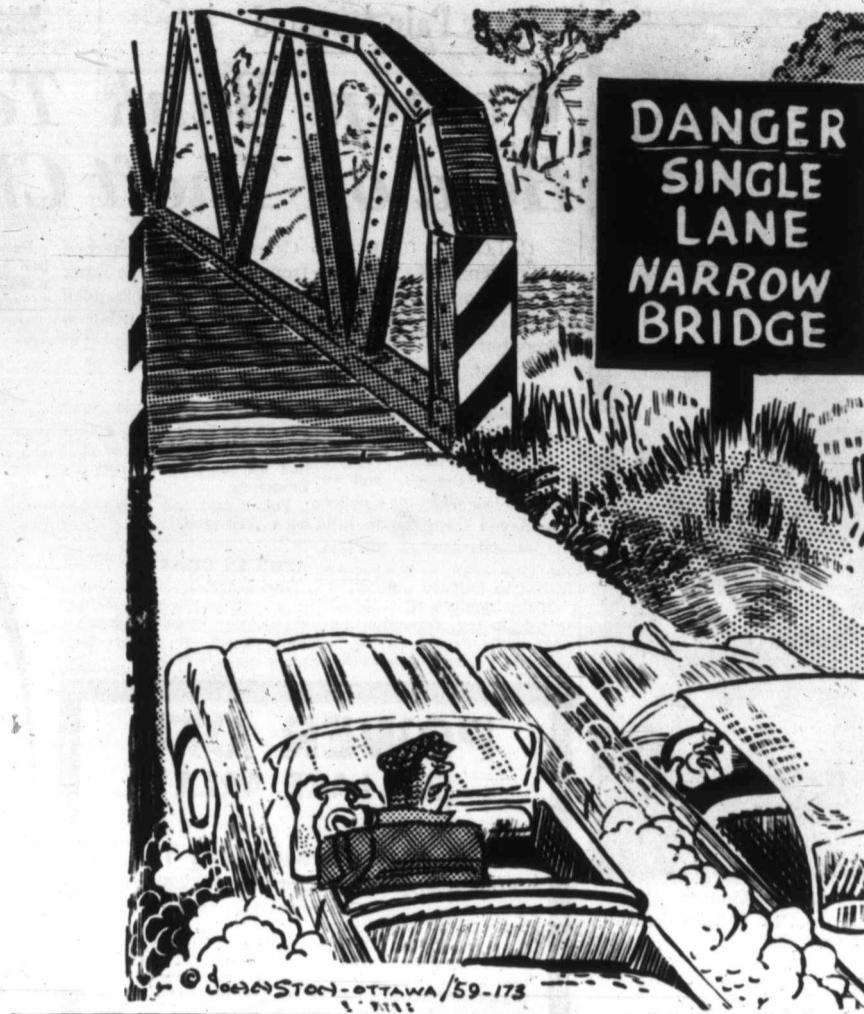

THE decision to transfer American fighter-bombers and some reconnaissance planes from France to Britain exposes the West's failure to agree on nuclear-age strategy.

Despite months of trying, NATO representatives have been unable to resolve differences within the alliance on the larger nuclear issues. Among these questions are where the nuclear armament should be stationed and the moral-strategic problem of whether the West should be first to resort to nuclear weapons.

Gen. Norstad's action in shifting the American squadrons from their present base in France—and in the process transferring to Britain the dubious distinction of having a higher nuclear "load" than any other country—is the latest and most serious manifestation of western inability to agree on the nuclear role.

It arises from a clash between two points of view. Gen. Norstad is determined that the bombers should carry a nuclear punch. President de Gaulle of

Thinking Aloud

"...of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

HAPPILY I have managed to go through life to date without being hauled into court for some misdemeanor or other. The only time I stood at the bar of judgment with my cap off was before another kind of authority. That crime was a minuscule one—or at least looking back it does not seem mountainous—although one would never have guessed so in view of the frowns cast in my direction. I merely didn't hear Reveille.

Yet I pursue my daily way haunted by apprehension lest I am, somehow, breaking the law. It could scarcely be otherwise. There are so many laws, rules, regulations, decrees and taboos on the statute books, in legal precedent, that one lone head could not comprehend them all. Even the most brilliant legal mind of one's acquaintance—and some there are of vintage quality in our fair city—does not carry them in his head. He needs his library.

The layman cannot very well trail a string of books after him, yet the penalty for ignorance is very severe. It could land any one of us in jail. Legal people are supposed to be logical chaps, yet they have adopted a thesis that, actually, contradicts common sense; to wit, that ignorance of the law is no excuse for committing an offence. It is not humanly possible for anyone to know all the law, but apparently the realm would totter if this presumption of knowledge were not as of the Medes and Persians.

A distinguished contributor to the Winnipeg Free Press discusses the question and illustrates the application of the theme to a British naval captain of long ago who shot at another ship and wounded her commander. He was charged in court when he got home, wholly unaware, poor fellow, having been without radio, that while at sea the law had been changed and such behaviour had become bad legal form. His ignorance was no defence against a principle that had been handed down as a legacy from Roman jurisprudence.

Another case cited is that of four Frenchmen 100 years ago who, political refugees in England, unfortunately had brought their habits of honor with them. They took part in a duel, unaware that the rose and the fleur-de-lis are not precisely similar flowers, and found to their dismay that what was very proper in their homeland was very improper in their new land. Though ignorant of English law, the moment they stepped ashore they were presumed to know all about it.

This all seems to be a very hard-boiled and convenient way of looking at things by the legal fraternity, except that it is the only method by which, I gather, they could keep their reason. It was a famous lawyer of an ancient age who put the thing in a nutshell, viz.: that ignorance is an excuse that every man would plead and no man could tell how to refute him. And true enough, what a pickle both lawyer, judge and layman would be in if, after all, ignorance was the perfect absolution. My daily apprehensions are not allayed nevertheless. People and their ways, I am bound to conclude, are perverse very queer indeed. They must contradict themselves to keep themselves straight.

In London, there is much talk of the so-called "double veto" on use of nuclear weapons from British bases. Theoretically, the British government would have to give permission before American fighter-bombers could launch a nuclear attack.

The question has been raised as to whether such a veto means anything. In the kind of emergency that Gen. Norstad might consider required nuclear action by the West, there would be little time for solemn consultation between cabinets.

Reports From Ottawa

But it's awkward, paying a $20 hotel bill with 80 quarters.

This flood of U.S. coins is also causing considerable annoyance to some Canadians. I have a friend who makes a point of refusing to accept U.S. coins. He'll pluck an offending U.S. dime out of a handful of change and hold it up.

"What's this?" he'll demand angrily.

The startled clerk will reply, "Why, ten cents."

"Where are we?" he'll counter. "Is this the United States? Not yet, it isn't my friend. This is Canada, and I want a Canadian 10-cent piece."

He's entirely within his rights, of course, but whether he's being a bit childish in his nationalistic attitude is a matter of opinion. I wouldn't be bothered. But then I haven't taken Canadian currency into a bank in St. Louis, as he has, and been laughed at for being so naive as to expect the bank to pay more than one good American dollar for a Canadian dollar.

In fairness to the St. Louis bank, there's probably not much demand for Canadian dollars in St. Louis. The bank would have to send my friend's dollars to a clearing house, thus incurring trouble, expense, and risking a loss if the Canadian dollar suddenly weakened.

The answer is that if you're going to the States, buy your Canadian dollars there.

But at the same time, we'll never get rid of our mutual Canadian-American dollar exchange grievances until we stop calling our currency unit a dollar. If we called our dollar a Canadian pound, a half dollar a crown, a quarter a shilling and so forth, we'd have the problem beaten. Even the Americans know a pound is worth more than a dollar, and they'd pay $1.05 for a Canadian pound and think they were getting a bargain.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

You can hear the singing commercial calling upon us to "live bedder electric-tee!"

Even some of our statesmen find difficulty in sounding the T in the words government and parliament, employing instead a curious blunted N sound, a kind of nasal grunt such as is to be heard on every hand in the pronunciation of such place names as Hamilton, Boston, Montreal, Moncton. It goes Hamil'n, Bos'n, Mun'real, Monc'n, the apostrophe in each case being the nasal cluck of the tongue pressing up on the N.

In fact, as T grows in disfavor, N increases, so that quite frequently now we hear representatives of our southern neighbors referring to the "United States". But, there being too many Ts there, they prefer to use America.

At Last—A Good Stamp

(From the Montreal Gazette)

SINCE so much has been said in the past in criticism of Canadian postage stamps, a very good word should be said for the five-cent stamp issued to mark the royal visit.

This is such a splendid piece of work that it proves what can be done. It is a handsome stamp in size and color. But a great part of its success has been the use of the painting of the Queen by Pietro Annigoni. This is a remarkable portrait by a spirited artist, and its adaptation to the needs of a postage stamp has been admirably done.

Part of the trouble in the past has been the astonishingly poor engraving.

Letter from London

If the Light Goes Out...

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

I AM writing this as the clouds darken over the newspaper world in the United Kingdom. The national newspapers—those published in London—are threatened by a close-down through withdrawal of ink supplies. The reprieve for a few days (because the union concerned was graciously pleased to allow newspapers to share what ink they had) may result in a settlement, in which case many will be grateful; but the issues involved are still worth discussing.

Mr. C. P. Scott, the distinguished editor of The Manchester Guardian, maintained that a good newspaper was a privately owned public utility. A good newspaper is the eyes and ears of the public, it serves; it is inquisitive and informative. Over here there are many citizens who do not like newspapers. Amongst them are the police, civil servants, many lawyers and public men. The main reason for the dislike is the iniquitiveness of newspapers.

Recently there have been outrages in Britain about high-handed police action. Nothing would have been known if newspapers had not been inquisitive.

Newspapers have been tough on bureaucrats using sledgehammers to crack nuts. They sided with the little man being molested by the big boys. Newspapers have exposed the activities of dubious time-payment companies, exposed company frauds, and several times lately put little men in big places into proper perspective. They have sided with the oppressed, criticized magistrates and won apologies from judges.

Bluntly, newspapers have the irritating but democratically useful habit of sticking their noses into other people's nasty business.

Bureaucrats, often with hides like an elephant, are singularly sensitive to newspaper criticism or even to bald statements of fact which speak for themselves. Politicians would be much less responsible if it was not for newspapers. Company directors would sometimes be less careful were it not for the watchful eyes of business editors. And professional sport would be much more unsavory than it is were it not for the pungent comment of sports editors.

Whatever criticisms, just and unjust, may be levied against the morality of newspapers and journalists, the fact remains that they exert a tremendous influence on the public behavior of others, and incidentally upon themselves. I find myself wondering how many careless motorists would be worried if there was only the fine to pay, and they were spared the newspaper account of their offence.

Newspapers are the ramparts of freedom not because of their own innate goodness, not because of their own superiority, but because they have no power denied to any individual. They cannot order anyone to do anything, they cannot issue directives, they cannot boss anyone—but they can and do provide a restraint. They are feared by those who order people around and if they over-reach themselves, as sometimes they do, they have to pay up.

Never let us forget that the first thing both Hitler and Mussolini did on getting power was to muzzle the press. The only reason the Russian thinks as he does is that he has no independent press to provide him with the facts and raw material upon which he can make up his mind. One of the safety valves of democracy is the ability of the common man to "write to the newspapers about it."

If the light of the free press goes out in Britain the true beneficiaries will be bureaucrats, upstarts and lawbreakers. Even the trades unionists will be handicapped when they have no platform on which to state their case.

The mere facts of world events we will get on the radio, but the restraint on petty tyranny will have gone. Publicity is the astringent of democracy, and newspapers are its main suppliers. Freedom needs light and newspapers generate it.

Burn'd on the water; the poop was beaten gold.

Purple the sails, and so perfumed that

The winds were love-sick with them, the oars were silver,

The water which they beat to follow faster,

As amorous as their strokes.

Letters to the EditorTiger by the Tail

It may be just my impression, but there seems to be a kind of Alice in Wonderland atmosphere about the lumber strike.

We know that the men, already very well paid, will never regain the losses they sustain in pay in this strike. We know that we have lost all but the very changeable American market as a result of the high prices of our lumber. This market could shut off in a moment if the U.S.A. decides, as it has done many times in the past. We know that higher wages pour fuel on the fire of inflation, which is robbing people with the lowest incomes through the erosion of their savings, insurance, pension, and superannuation. We know that Russia is flourishing on the sale of lumber to our former customers and blood relatives in Britain.

We know that a local lumber company pathetically bleated, "Our sale of goods is not illegal," as if a trade union had the right to say that the sale of goods by a citizen of this country is legal or illegal. I thought our government determined whether it was legal to buy or sell any particular type of goods, including lumber.

We, the consumers, have allowed the unions to get across the idea that anyone not supporting their outrageous demands, which will cost the consumer more money, is somehow not quite playing cricket.

A picket line is sacred to union members only. Why should the general public support this idea and allow itself to be intimidated? A citizen has every right and, perhaps, the duty to pass a picket line where he feels the demand of a union is unjust. Even the lumber companies involved appear to have fallen for the idea that it is not quite nice to sell to citizens even though those citizens do not believe in the justice of the union's demands and will have to pay, in the final analysis, any increases granted.

The final irony is that the leaders of organized labor are at last becoming uneasily aware of the economic effect of their exorbitant and irresponsible demands, but are now the victim of their own propaganda and dare not communicate their qualms to the rank and file. They have a tiger by the tail. Shades of Lewis Carroll.

Why Blame the CPR?

It is a strange way of reasoning to blame the CPR for pulling out of what is and has been for a long time an increasing loss of revenue. The company may "have done very well out of Vancouver Island," but the Island, we must not forget, has done very well out of the CPR.

Since when has a loss of $48,000 in a few months been "small"? As long as the CPR was the only means of transit to the mainland all went well and good. Directly there was an air service and other ferries the CPR was bypassed. One has only to see the miserable handful of passengers that get off the boats . . . to realize that every run means a financial loss.

Why should the company wait until the new subsidized ships are in service? For years they have had to contend with the CNR, to which the monumental losses year by year seem to mean nothing; but the CPR has had to fight its own war. I see no callousness in the principle that every branch must show a profit. Why not?

Ottawa HighlightsNewfoundland Aid to Go On

OTTAWA—The federal government made a major move Monday to patch up its disrupted diplomatic relations with Newfoundland.

Finance Minister Fleming, whose government has been under the gun of Premier Smallwood for months, told the Commons that the newest province will get special consideration on its federal-provincial financial arrangements beyond 1962.

The Newfoundland administration has been fuming at the federal government since March, when Ottawa announced it will follow the terms of financial aid proposed by a royal commission but will cut off payments at March 31, 1962.

Alp-Bound Elephant Gets Jumbo-Size Coat

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP)—A team of three sailmakers announced with some pride Monday that they have finished making an overcoat for an elephant.

The overcoat contains 90 square feet of canvas, or enough for a small sailboat, and has a padded cotton lining. It is intended to keep the Alpine winds off an elephant named Little Jumbo.

Forest Fire Mastered?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The worst forest fire in Labrador's history is now believed under control, a report reaching here yesterday disclosed.

But officials on the scene fear another outbreak unless it rains.

The report said the fire in rich, virgin woodlands at Goose Bay so far has burned up 200,000 cords of pulp wood.

It is going there soon in an attempt to re-enact the famous elephant crossing by the Carthaginian general Hannibal, who gave the Romans so much trouble in 219 B.C.

The re-enactment was dreamed up by a British historian, Professor J. M. Hoyte.

Most historians believe that Hannibal, complete with elephant cavalry, descended on the Romans by way of 4,500-foot Mongine Pass or 6,000-foot Little St. Bernard.

DIFFERENT IDEA

Hoyte has a different idea. He thinks that Hannibal arrived via Clapier Pass, which wends its way 7,300 feet above sea level. The professor walked the route himself a couple of years ago, and is convinced an elephant could do the same.

The zoo in Turin, Italy, agreed to lend him Little Jumbo to settle whether it can be done. There was then a painful outcry from British animal lovers, who pointed out that it gets mighty cold in the Alps, especially by the stand-

Canyon Country On Royal Route As Tour Resumes

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—An idyllic holiday, bathed in sunshine and surrounded by privacy, ends at noon today for the Queen and Prince Philip.

The royal couple will fly back to this central British Columbia city to resume the 44-day tour of Canada that they broke off Saturday for a 56-hour vacation at Lake Pannask.

Their schedule after that calls for a scenic train journey down the Thompson and Fraser River Canyons, making 10-minute stops at the communities of Ashcroft, Spence's Bridge, Lytton, Boston Bar and Hope and 65 minutes at Chilliwack.

LONDON (CP)—The Sunday Times says the relaxed attitude to the royal tour displayed in Western Canada is adding a gaiety that was lacking in Ontario.

Tonight the train will be parked in a siding until Wednesday morning when it carries the royal party into New Westminster.

On the tour today the Queen will see scenery that ranges from dry fruit growing country where irrigation is used, to ruggedly beautiful river canyons and flat delta land.

After leaving Kamloops she will see a great dead orchard at Walhachine, now almost a ghost area, that was once an ambitious fruit-growing project established by the Marquis of Anglesey. More

14 Months in Jail Girl Mistaken About Rape, Man Freed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A 25-year-old man falsely convicted of raping a 16-year-old virgin is looking for the wife who divorced him because of the scandal.

William Lott walked out of jail a free man Saturday after serving 14 months of a five-year rape conviction.

The girl he allegedly attacked was given a medical examination recently. Medical authorities testified she was a virgin. When confronted with the evidence, the girl said: "I guess I could be mistaken."

Lott's first thought after he was freed was to find the spouse who left him. He believed she was still in New Orleans.

Lott, a barber college student at the time of his conviction, was pardoned by Gov. Earl Long. Authorities investigated the girl when she alleged recently that some Negroes raped her. Her parents have asked for psychiatric care for their daughter, who is now 17.

Lott had insisted he was innocent, but pleaded guilty to the rape charge in court rather than face a trial by a grand jury. Conviction by the jury could have meant a mandatory death sentence.

Kept Under Palace Wraps

Philip's Bra Hidden

LONDON (AP)—A woman's bra—the property of Prince Philip—failed Monday to appear on public display as advertised, and thereby created a mild sensation.

On display were presents given Philip on a tour of the Commonwealth. Funds collected are to go to the National Playing Fields Association, of which Prince Philip is president.

Neighbors Help Extinguish Flames Threatening Homes

Sunday's blustering wind whipped up a bush fire that flared up on a rocky Oak Bay promontory near Newport and Island, threatening several homes before it was extinguished.

Reported at 4:30 p.m., the blaze required hard work by firemen and volunteers before it was completely quelled at 10 p.m.

Neighbors and others were actually presented to Philip some were intended for members of the family.

"Ah, yes," coughed the discreet official, "you'd better ask this lady about that. She's from Buckingham Palace."

The cheeks of the lady from the palace reddened.

"I'm afraid it's at the palace," she said. "I'm sorry, but—but well, it seems to have been left behind."

The display official explained that while the presents were actually presented to Philip some were intended for members of the family.

"For instance," he explained, "there's a grass mat for Princess Anne."

A bold spirit suggested that the gift from the Tamana islanders might have been intended for another member of the royal family.

"Really?" said the display official stalking away, "this conversation is getting dangerously close to less majesty."

Missing Hunter Eaten by Bear

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI)—Sheriff's officers said here yesterday they found evidence that a missing hunter had been killed and eaten "in a wild water with a raging bear."

Evidence found in a mountain meadow may solve the disappearance of Sam Adams, about 45, of Missoula, who vanished on a hunting trip in the area last Oct. 27.

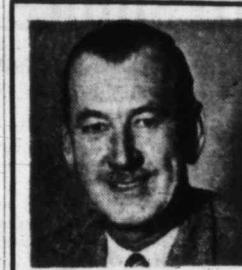

The search party found his rifle smashed in three parts, his wallet, shoes and some clothing. They also found bear tracks.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI)—Loyal troops crushed a police revolt after a 15-hour battle Sunday in which at least 90 persons were killed.

"He apparently crawled alongside a log and tried to light a fire to get warm. He removed the shoelaces—probably to use as tourniquets.

Then it looks like he fired his last two bullets to summon aid.

No Picketing Log Storage Says Court

Focus on the IWA strike shifted yesterday from the Victoria waterfront to Courtenay, where officials of Local 1-363 were served with an injunction restraining picketing of pulp log storage grounds.

The court order was granted on an application by Powell River Co. Ltd. and Kingcome Navigation Co. Ltd.

It is returnable at Vancouver courthouse at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday. The hearing before Mr. Justice A. M. Manson then will give the union a chance to oppose renewal of the injunction.

In addition to the Courtenay local, the injunction cites IWA district council No. 1 and Vancouver Local 1-171, IWA.

All Quiet on Docks

Meanwhile, all was quiet at Victoria's Ogden Point docks, where two ships finished loading and left by late afternoon.

A spokesman for the ship owners said the approximate total of 10,000,000 board feet of lumber stockpiled at Ogden Point when the strike started last Monday has been whittled down to about 3,000,000 board feet by six ships.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, an official of the B.C. Shipping Federation said an injunction prohibiting Victoria IWA men from picketing the docks here was allowed to lapse, "because picketing stopped and the ships were loaded."

There was no indication from either side of new talks to settle the dispute, which economists estimate already has cost the B.C. economy about $21,500,000.

Ex-Umpire Charges'Alibi Ikes' Sickening

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball is in an era of "the alibi artist and the chronic kicker," former Major League umpire Ralph (Babe) Pinelli charged today, with so much fakery that it "makes anyone serious about the game sick to his stomach."

"There are too many players who would rather whine and scream than swing a bat," he asserted. "They are worse than a bunch of old women."

Pinelli, who from 1935 through 1956 compiled a record of handling 3,400 games without missing an assignment, made his charges in a sweeping indictment of modern players and the "alibi trend" in baseball.

He concluded that:

1. Spittals are a myth concocted by players who are more cyphers than athletes while beanball charges are trumped up 90 per cent of the time.

2. Managers are victims of their own nerves because they are frightened men with a job span of only three or four seasons.

3. Ninety per cent of ejections are for profanity on the personal insult side "which usually is only a four-letter attempt to cover up the player's own foul."

4. Pitchers today have "no chance" against the lively ball, light bats, short fences and a tiny strike zone.

I Called 'Em Strikes'

"For 20 years I did my best to enlarge the strike zone," Pinelli writes in True Magazine this week, making an admission which will start the hitters screaming all over again. "And I called pitches strikes if the slightest part of the ball shaded the target area."

There are in the major leagues what Babe describes as "sincere kickers." Among these he lists such as Ted Kluszewski, Wally Post, Harvey Kuenn, Jackie Jensen, Eddie Yost, Richie Ashburn, Ernie Banks, Hank Aaron, Carl Furillo, Gil Hodges, Johnny Logan and Don Drymmer.

Earl Torgeson—"One of the worst complainers."

Solly Hermal—"Master agitator and showboat kicker."

Eddie Stanky—"Worst kicker and staller I ever met."

Frank Thomas—"Chronic griper."

Orlando Cepeda—"Walking powder keg."

Willie Jones Among Worst

Willie Jones—"Among the worst criers and a 'surveyor' who holds out his bat to show where the pitch went."

Walt Alston—"Grim, bitter type kicker."

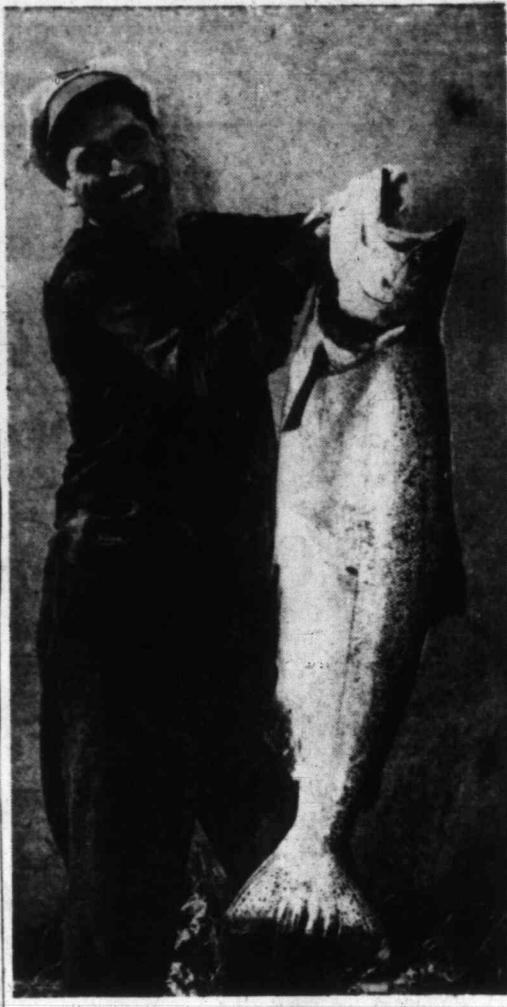

Billy Loes—"A sulker."

Don Hoak—"Tantum thrower."

Billy Martin—"Argument faker."

Hank Foiles—"Tricky alibi type."

Pinelli is proud of being described as the man who "made a tame cat out of Leo the Lion." He alleges that once Durocher called him a

Speaking BrieflyCanada's Tennis Team Includes Two Rookies

Two veterans and two virtually untested rookies will carry Canada's hopes in the 1959 Davis Cup tennis competition.

Bob Bedard, 27, of Sherbrooke, Que., and Don Fontana, 28, of Toronto, won berths on Canada's team as they have for the past several years. The newcomers are Francis Godbout, 21, of Waterloo, Que., and John Bassett, Jr., 20, of Toronto. The two youngsters were picked from a field of nine after a round-robin tournament in Toronto.

Lorne Main, of Montreal and Toronto, is to be non-playing captain of the team, which goes into action July 24-26 in Montreal against the winner of the Australia-Mexico tie.

Reider Getz tried out for the team.

Eagles' Hall was announced of plans for a special "day" July 25 at Royal Athletic Park. Honoring the oldtimers and showcasing the talent of the present-day stars of the Senior Amateur Baseball League.

On that day, the greats of local baseball's successful 1920-45 era will play an exhibition game against a team made up of members of the City Employees' Association. Those who don't play will come as special guests, to take part in ceremonies preceding the Senior Amateur League game between Eagles and Page the Cleaners.

Officially it's Eagles' Day to honor the oldtimers. That's the frosting on the cake to attract a sellout crowd at Royal Athletic Park.

But that's only part of it. The big reason for the day is to bring fans back to baseball, and show them that senior-calibre ball in the city is as good if not better than it ever was.

Those at last night's meeting know this to be a fact. Fellows like Doc Webster, Jack Latham, Stuffy McGinnis, Ray Parfitt and Bill Brousseau and others who were playing in the so-called "good old days" admit it. The hope is that enough fans who show up to see the oldsters will see that it's true and become regular supporters of the senior league.

Because it is a fact that at a time when the city's minor baseball program is better than it ever has been, the senior league is drawing only enough fans to accentuate the empty stands of Royal Athletic Park.

So, July 25, baseball's old guard returns to the diamond to help revive the patient. There'll be bands and drill teams, the old-timers and all the hoopla associated with such days.

Mostly, there'll be baseball. Good baseball.

For Properly-Organized Program

Bennett Promises Sports Aid

KELowna (CP) — Premier Bennett says the British Columbia government would provide financial aid for any properly organized bid to improve the quality of B.C.'s athletes.

"Sport is an essential part of community life and warrants as much assistance as any of the other so-called arts," Mr. Bennett told Vancouver sports columnist Eric Whitehead in an interview here.

The premier said: "It's about time, particularly here in B.C., that we came up with . . . a whole new crop of champions that would be as good as anyone in the world. They're here, it's just up to us to find and develop them."

This could be done, he said, through "better coaching, better facilities, financial aid in training and travel."

Whitehead said he asked the premier: "You mean that if the proper organization were set up to handle a large-scale athletic-aid program, your government would provide substantial financial aid?"

"That's exactly what I mean," Mr. Bennett replied.

"Mind you, I wouldn't want athletes just taking joyrides on government money. But we'll help any program that has the right idea handled by the right men."

At the MoviesA Good Bad Man*Can't Tell 'Em by Hat Shade
In Bang-Up Face of Fugitive'

In the early days of western movies the forces of right and wrong were almost always represented by a Good Man and a Bad Man who squared off for a showdown at the finish. The Good Man was all good, and the Bad Man was all bad.

Westerns nowadays are still more often constructed according to rigid formulas than according to really fresh impulses in the minds of writers and directors, but the central corps of basic characters has been broadened.

"Face of a Fugitive," now playing at the Plaza, based on a story by Peter Dawson and directed by Paul Wendkos, presents Fred MacMurray as a Good Bad Man on the run from the police. A bank robber, he is no killer; but it's murder he's wanted for. Changing his name, he establishes himself in a frontier town where no one knows him. Police posters with his photo on them will be arriving soon. But instead of getting away while he has a chance, he hangs around for two compelling reasons:

1. The twon's young rookie sheriff (Lin McCarthy), a Good Good Man, is in danger of sudden death from rancher Alan Baxter, a Bad Bad Man who wants to dominate the territory. The fugitive decides to help him, no matter what happens.

2. The sheriff's sister (Dorothy Green) is a Good Good Woman who instantly recognizes the sterling qualities of our boy and is willing to "wait for him" if he goes to prison.

Agricultural Exhibit

Something New Added to All-Sooke Day

Traditional high-jinks marking All-Sooke Day this Saturday will have an added attraction, thanks to an RCMP ban on sale of tombola tickets.

An agricultural exhibit was added, organizers announced yesterday, and the name of the event has been changed to All-Sooke Day and Agricultural Exhibit.

This gives it status of an agricultural fair and permits the sale of tombola tickets. The director, George Hay, said that money from the tombola constitutes one-quarter of all revenue derived from the fair and its loss would be a "near-fatal" blow.

The All-Sooke Day program starts at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, with emphasis on barbecued salmon, loggers' sports and free fun for the expected crowd of 10,000 visitors.

The whoop-de-doo actually gets its kick-off the previous day, however, with the All-Sooke Day committee sponsoring the third annual marathon run from Victoria City Hall to Sooke River Flats.

Winner of the marathon is expected to reach the fair grounds shortly after 7:30 p.m. A square dance will be held after the race and sideshows and games will be operating through the evening.

Three world champions will be seen in the loggers' sports. Danny Sailor will put on an exhibition of tree climbing which brought him the title. And Sooke world champions Jubil and Ardil Wickham lead the field in the log-birling.

Other events highlighting the crowded program include log-rolling, chopping, bucking with hand and power saws, axe falling and the riggers' race against time up an 80-foot spar tree and down again. There'll be a woman's nail-driving contest, a baby show, and a dance in the community hall in the evening.

Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch will officially open the fair at 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

It is estimated that 500 pounds of salmon and 300 pounds of beef will be barbecued over open fires and served all afternoon.

Sooke Community Association, which organizes the annual event, announced that parking on the fair grounds has been increased to accommodate more than 400 cars.

A spokesman also said the swimming area has been improved to provide safe bathing.

Small Eggs Cheap

Small eggs dropped three cents a dozen in Victoria yesterday, to about half the price of large eggs.

Egg marketing experts say they are today's biggest food bargain.

The new price for smalls is 15 cents a dozen to producers and as low as 25 cents a dozen retail.

The low price is due to a big new crop of pullets starting production.

No Band At Civic Welcome

Ald. Austin Curtis, chairman of the civic royal visit committee, has withdrawn a request for the services of HMCS Naden band at the civic welcome to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip Friday morning.

When the committee made the request, he said yesterday, it was in order to have a band to play the national anthem, and at that time the committee was not aware that the military ceremonies on the nearby soccer field would already be in progress.

"I felt it was an imposition on the city's part to ask the band to come out merely to entertain the crowd while awaiting the arrival of Her Majesty, in view of the heavy commitments facing the band during the royal visit," he said.

City Giving Workers Morning Off

City hall employees have been given Friday morning off so that they can see the Queen and Prince Philip at the civic and military ceremonies, and will start work at 1 p.m.

The city action is in line with council's request to Victoria merchants that they free their employees Friday morning.

The adjoining municipalities are expected to follow suit, except Saanich, which won't follow because it led. Saanich decided two or three weeks ago that the whole day would be a municipal holiday, and hasn't revoked the decision.

Provincial employees in Victoria will have Thursday afternoon off to see the royal arrival and the provincial welcome at the legislative buildings.

Labor Court Fine If Wanted—Wicks

When labor and management agree voluntarily that a judge, labor court or other tribunal should be established to deal with deadlocks in contract negotiations, strikes, Mr. Pearlman said, affected everyone in the province, and "everyone is the loser."

Establishing a labor court without the voluntary agreement of labor and management would be imposing compulsion, Mr. Wicks said, and "until there is widespread acceptability, I think it would be very wrong."

Civic Leaders' Move Looks Like Mad Dash

The army says it can do it, Ald. Austin Curtis told Greater Victoria civic leaders last night; it just hasn't said how it can do it.

Ald. Curtis, chairman of the civic royal visit committee, and the mayor and the Greater Victoria reeves gathered at the Dallas parking bay below Beacon Hill to rehearse for the civic reception Friday morning.

"I'm awfully sorry," said Ald. Curtis, "the army was going to have an officer here to us, but none have arrived."

Winning that race may not be the municipal leaders' only problem. Her Majesty will leave the military ceremonies at 12:10 p.m. and those who have been invited to the provincial luncheon at the Empress Hotel have been asked to be there by 12:25.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: My mother married a man nine years younger than she is when Dad died seven months ago. She didn't know him very well or very long. I'm sure it's a mistake, but this is HER problem. I'm writing about MINE.

My step-father has a warped sense of humor that makes me sick. He thinks he's a comedian and does imitations of everybody. I'm 16 and going with an honor student who will enter college this fall on a full scholarship. Ned had polio when he was a child and it left him with a slight limp. I don't think of him as handicapped, and neither does anyone else who knows him.

Last night some relatives were visiting and my step-father did an imitation of Ned. He exaggerated the limp and

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

SUN-KISSED OR SUN-BURNED? — Doctors consider sunburn an injury. It is also an insult to the skin and looks. And you are fair game for over-exposure unless you take these precautions:

Before sunning, always apply a suntan lotion to all uncovered areas. You must do this even after your tan is well-established, or your skin will come to look leathery before the summer is half over.

Effective lotions not only filter out the sun's burning rays, but also contain non-greasy ingredients that ward off dryness. Should you wish to appear tan while you tan, try a tinted lotion.

For heliophobes—those who are allergic to sun—there now are several lotions that keep the sun rays from reaching the skin at all. Using one, you do not tan, but you can stay in the sun for reasonable periods of time without the usual penalties. There also are lip pomades in lipstick colors that protect extra-sensitive lips.

New York Showing Points Way

Women to Look Like Women

NEW YORK (AP)—Women will look like women when they are dressed in the new fashions.

That was the consensus of 200 visiting fashion editors viewing the opening fall showings of the couture group of the New York Dress Institute. Signs of relief and applause greeted the first collections, shown by designers Jane Erby, Donald Brooks, Yves Saint-Laurent and Robert Know.

The new clothes have waistlines in the middle, wider shoulders, easy fit and a choice of full or slim skirts. Anybody should be happy with such a choice, it was agreed.

Jane Derby showed a collection of beautiful, wearable clothes with her usual touch of elegance. The collection is notable for luxurious fabrics and feminine styling.

Donald Brooks, a young American designer showing his first collection for the House of Townley as successor to the late Claire McDowell, presented fashions in two moods — full-skirted, draped and swirled, or military.

Resignation of J. A. McDiarmid, 895 Heywood, as head of the B.C. agriculture publications branch becomes effective Thursday. He is leaving the government service to return to high school teaching.

with tiered pouffed ruffles at the hemline and a bit of drapery forming the bodice. In the same mood was a black tissue taffeta late-day dress with tremendous pouffed swirled skirt in two tiers, looking as if the wearer might take off in the first gust of wind.

Knox, designer for the House of Ben Gershel, shows a feminine collection of basic suits and coats—the kind that will see a working girl smartly through any daytime occasion, and sail confidently through several seasons without looking dated.

Swallows to Cool Summer

One swallow doesn't make a summer, but several of them can make it a whole lot cooler.

Refreshing frosty beverages do provide cool comfort on a sweltering day when friends or neighbors drop in for a chat.

All of us are familiar with lemon, orange, lime and grapefruit juice. Keep a lemon syrup handy and you can whisk together a comforting beverage in seconds.

LEMON SYRUP

Fruit juices go farther, too, when made into a syrup. For lemon syrup, combine 2 cups sugar and 1 cup of water with the grated rind of 1 lemon. Bring to boil and boil 5 minutes. Cool and add juice of 6 or 7 lemons and strain into a jar. Cover and tuck into the refrigerator until someone calls for a thirst quencher.

For a tall beverage, pour 2 tbsp. of the syrup into a glass, and add ice water. Or use less of the syrup and add other fruit juices from your own fruit shelves.

When using canned pears, peaches or apricots for salads, pour off the juices and store in fridge to add to the prepared syrup. Learn to concoct new combinations. Pineapple, orange and lemon make a delightful mixture.

Take advantage of what might be a waste product and turn rhubarb into a delicious juice. It can be used all through the summer in cooling fruit beverages in combination with other fruit juices; to give tartness to jelly and also in jellied desserts and pudding sauces.

RHUBARB JUICE

Wash and cut rhubarb into small pieces, cover with cold water and bring to a simmer. Cook slowly in a covered kettle until soft. Strain by pouring the cooked fruit into a jelly bag and allowing it to drip overnight. This permits the sediment to settle.

Four Generations at Picnic

Four generations of the Kwan family of Victoria were among 1,400 people who attended the big annual Chinese picnic at Mount Douglas Park Sunday. Seated is the great-grandmother, 84-year-old Mrs. Seto Shee Kwan, who was born in Canton, and beside her is

They Kept Promise

LONDON (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamilton of Calgary went sightseeing yesterday as part of a holiday they promised themselves on their wedding day 20 years ago.

Garden Notes

Big, Green Ash Tray

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Now that entertaining on the lawn is in full swing, smokers inevitably run up against the problem of butt disposal. Your hostess never thinks to provide an ash tray, so you wonder what to do when your cigaret reaches unsmokable proportions.

Do you nonchalantly butt it out and fling it into one of the flower beds? Not, if you want to be invited back. There isn't anything that will produce a Skid Row effect more quickly than a lot of soggy cigaret remains scattered all over the beds.

Stick the butt surreptitiously into the cuff of your trousers? Better, but too no good. If it happens to be still smouldering, you may go home pantsuds when you try to wash them off, but the stains will remain.

The best solution is simply to drop it on the lawn, being careful NOT to butt it out first. On a dry lawn, the cigaret will consume itself entirely, leaving just a fine white ash which is good for the lawn.

Better chuck it down wind a bit, particularly if you smoke cork tips, as these smell horrible in their expiring stages.

Those gardeners who are growing the tall, staking kinds of tomatoes, as distinct from Rhode Island and the other bush types, are finding a lot of work among the tomato plants these days. There is the staking and tying, and removing all those infuriating side shoots which seem to spring out of the leaf axils every time you turn your back for a moment.

Work among tomato plants certainly messes up your hands—of my readers suggested this might be the origin of the term "green thumb." When you come into the house to clean up after attending to these jobs, your hands are indelibly smeared with green stains from the plants. You'll get a lot of dirty yellow-green soapuds when you try to wash them off, but the stains will remain.

The trick here is to go to the kitchen after washing the worst of the dirt off, slice a lemon in half, and rub the tomato stains with the cut surface. They'll come off as clean as a whistle.

Every year, during the growing season, I get at least a dozen inquiries asking whether tea leaves are of any value in the garden. Some of these correspondents, with friends or relatives in the hotel or restaurant business, can lay hands on almost unlimited quantities. Others would simply like to put to good use the leaves from their own teapot.

Tea leaves, like any other organic matter, are of value, dug in, for improving the soil texture. Dried off and shaken up a little to separate the individual bits, they make an excellent insulating mulch for spreading over the soil surface around plants. Used tea bags are less useful, as they dry into a hard mass, but can be buried fairly deeply to improve the water-holding capacity of the soil, or rotted down in the compost heap.

Because of the tannic acid content, tea leaves have an acid reaction, and are therefore especially useful as a mulch around rhododendrons, azaleas, hollies and camellias. Used in the root run of other plants, though, their acidity should be toned down a bit by adding a sprinkle of lime.

An old gag among gardeners is to boast that you are using a mulching material imported from Ceylon, and for which you paid better than a dollar per pound—tea leaves!

Viewing World

Fresh Ideas Get Go-Ahead

Things are looking up. I remember about this time last year everyone was moaning about how bad the coming season looked. And, by George, they were right. Now, it begins to look as if we have turned the corner. At least on paper it looks that way.

Over at NBC in the office of Herb Sussan, director of NBC's special programs, there is a large green board. It runs almost the length of one wall and it is covered with white cards and red pegs. The board is for the listing of NBC specials of which some 150 are under preparation for next year costing some $40,000,000.

Of course, that word special covers a multitude of sins but at least it doesn't mean another Western. It means, in short, sort of variety or news or dramatic shows that are different from whatever was on last week or will be on next week.

Sussan was discovered the other day in the middle of a phone conversation with a writer named S. Lee Pogostin. The conversation from Sussan's end went like this: "I understand it hasn't been done before. But that doesn't preclude the possibility that we can't do it. I'm calling the bluff of every writer who has said they would go go go if they were given the opportunity to write what they wanted to write."

"Here's the opportunity". There was a pause. "I know, Lee, I know. But remember, it's harder to struggle with success than to struggle to make it."

He hung up, cigar in teeth, and sketched for me the history of this new and heartening interest in higher type television. "The development of interest in specials to this intensity became apparent in January this year. It means to me there is an upswing in television, that TV is coming out of its doldrums. Instead of getting requests for one special from company or agency, we were getting requests for seven or eight at once. NBC has been in the group special situation before with Hallmark and Rexall but never to the extent it is now.

"But as the special requests came in, we realized there wouldn't be time for these shows unless we set aside time. Whole time periods are now set aside for specials. These periods—Friday from 8.30 to 9.30 p.m. and Sunday from 8 to 9 p.m. (the old Steve Allen spot)—are open to any sponsor.

We pick the show and the sponsor is free to pay for it but has no say about the show at all. In addition the Ford series of specials begins this season (Tuesday 9.30 to 10.30 p.m.)

"We've been working on the development of good drama, too. We decided to make Sunday from 8 to 9 NBC's drama showcase. I've been trying to get all the good writers from the old days of television—the guys who wrote for Fred Coe on the Philco and Goodyear Playhouse. I talked to every man who was on that David Susskind show—Bob Arthur, Paddy Chayefsky, Tad Mosel, J. P. Miller—all of them," he sighed.

"We feel real excitement about this project. We might draw a blank. But we feel something TV hasn't felt in a long time—genuine excitement."

Alec Too Old for Part

LONDON (NANA)—Sir Alec Guinness has given up his idea of starring in the movie version of "The Loved Ones," Evelyn Waugh's deadly-sharp satire on Forest Lawn, a cemetery. The book was written a decade ago, and Alec agreed to make the movie some five years back. "Now I'm too old for the part," he told me. "It needs a younger man." We'll soon be seeing Sir Alec in "The Scapegoat," Metro's movie of the Daphne Du Maurier best seller.

I learn that Cuba's Fidel Castro has issued an edict pertaining to the "Our Man in Havana" movie that the women of his country must give up the popular tight pencil-slim and very revealing skirt. "He's on a dignity kick," I was told. He's trying to elevate manners and morals!"

Buri Ives is having a frustrating time with his Portuguese maid who can't speak a word of English, and Buri can't speak a word of Portuguese. He'd like her to cut down on the rich cooking, but hasn't been able to "make contact." I asked Buri how much he weighed and he replied, "Three hundred pounds—a nice round figure." It's round, all right.

Twenty-year-old Oxford student John Parker-Rees has a photograph of Fred Astaire's 17-year-old daughter Ava, inscribed, "With My Love, Ava." "She's too young to think of marriage," Papa Fred told me in Hollywood—but Mr. Parker-Rees has arranged a house party for Ava in Ireland when she arrives here with her father.

Rails to Pool Strike Fund?

NEW YORK (AP) — The Wall Street Journal says that U.S. railroads are considering a plan to blunt the threat of labor disputes by pooling industry funds in case of a strike against any participating carrier.

The plan is designed to frustrate a union tactic of calling a strike at only one or two companies at a time, thus threatening loss of business to competitors.

Saucer Society Abandons Rock

'Crackpots No More'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tales of personal interviews with men from Mars, Venus and other distant planets regaled listeners at the convention of the Amalgamated Flying Saucer Clubs of America Inc.

Almost everybody present agreed on one thing: Somebody up there is watching us.

But there wasn't complete unanimity of opinion during the weekend meeting.

Said one delegate, Dan Martin of St. Louis, as he pointed his finger at other delegates: "They're 99 per cent fakes."

Martin, 61, said his wife divorced him, then tried to have him committed to a mental institution for his beliefs.

He admitted he has never seen a flying saucer.

"But I rode in one." He described it as a vehicle from Venus with a crew from Mercury. They entertained him, he said, with a luncheon of fruit salad and wine.

Martin challenged other convention speakers to prove their saucer claims. He said he could verify his.

"The public is tired of all these fantastic stories," he said.

Governor Sorts Scalawags During Vacation in Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Governor Earl K. Long of Louisiana fired all his doctors and psychiatrists yesterday because, he said, he knows as much as they do.

Long, 63, has had as many as six doctors and psychiatrists at one time. He is suffering from nervous breakdown, heart trouble and the effects of a small stroke.

He is in Texas on vacation. While he rests, he is trying to sort out the "scalawags" in his administration so he can send them packing when he returns home.

"I've got another doctor coming over tomorrow to give me an examination from . . . to . . . and I'll take his word for it," Long announced.

KNOWN LONG TIME

He said the doctor is a "fellow I've known a long time in Louisiana," but declined to name him.

The governor arrived in Fort Worth Saturday night with a pillow slip over his head to foil photographers. He cursed the photographers and reporters profoundly and at length, but later apologized.

He said he will stay in Fort Worth until Wednesday, in the hope that he will be invited to address the Texas legislature.

Long expects to leave Fort Worth Wednesday for El Paso, and go on into Mexico.

JUST WAIT

Long announced: "Hell is going to break loose" when he gets home.

Mrs. Long has "taken" him for "several hundred thousand" but he has $300,000 left, largely because of a "long-shot oil well."

He suspects that some officials in his administration are taking bribes "but I'm too smart to do that."

If the Texas legislature invites him to speak, one of the matters he will discuss will be the danger of an old man taking a young wife.

Steel Companies Reject Union Bid For 15-Cent Hike

NEW YORK (AP)—The steelworkers union Monday night proposed a 15-cent-an-hour annual contract package to the industry. But the companies turned it down to leave a strike threat still imminent at midnight tonight.

David J. McDonald, steelworkers union president, emerged from a two-hour negotiating session—convened on the appeal of President Eisenhower—to say that the union's offer had been rejected by the industry.

Air Pioneer Star of Fair At Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton's 81st annual summer exhibition opened Monday with a 1½-hour parade which drew an estimated 100,000 spectators to the downtown area.

Setting the stage for the week-long summer fair, the parade was one of the biggest in the city's history, with 142 units. Theme was the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

Riding in the parade was fair opener Mrs. Katherine Stinson Otero, who flew the first air mail into Edmonton in 1916 in a tiny single-seater biplane.

Prince Philip Cooked Hamburgers

This is the text of press officer Esmond Butler on the royal couple's activities Monday at Pennask Lodge.

By EDMOND BUTLER

It has been a wonderful day and I think the Queen and Prince Philip have enjoyed it thoroughly. The Queen and Prince Philip got up early and directly after breakfast went riding with Col. Nicholas Van der Vliet and a cowboy by the name of Pat Wright. They rode through the woods and were out for about 40 minutes.

On returning Prince Philip caught several fish from the dock but he and the Queen were ready to believe the fishing was really good when one jumped right out of the water and landed on the dock near the Queen. Everyone thought it was a great joke and Prince Philip finally threw it back in because it was under a pound.

About mid-morning the Queen and Prince Philip set off in a motorboat to fish. At 1 p.m. PDT they and the household met for a barbecue lunch on Belle Island. Prince Philip had the barbecue going when we arrived and cooked delicious hamburgers, sausages, and later we cooked some of the food he had caught, in tinfoil. Very good they were, too.

Several other guests joined the party uninvited. A red squirrel came and took all the food that was offered to him and fed from the hand. He stored the food in various places and then came back for more. Several whisky-Jacks (grey and white birds) then arrived. After being given food, some by hand, they then stole some of the squirrel's cache and eventually made off with buns left unguarded on the table, much to everyone's amusement.

The Queen and Prince Philip have shown great interest in the wild life on the lake, the loons, the ospreys which have a huge nest on top of a branchless dead pine tree, squirrels and chipmunks.

Both the Queen and Prince Philip caught several good fish today as did members of the household, the staff and the pilots.

Constable's Helmet on Hood

The crash helmet which failed to save the life of city motorcycle constable Earle Doyle Sunday night rests on the hood of the car involved. Helmet flew off Const. Doyle's head during the accident. Crash Helmet Tragic Failure

Crash helmets issued to city motorcycle police June 29 as a safety measure failed tragically Sunday in their first test when a 29-year-old constable sustained fatal head injuries in a collision.

Earle Doyle, father of three children, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 5:25 p.m. yesterday, almost 21 hours after the collision occurred at the intersection of Douglas Street and Francis.

Eyewitnesses said police Const. Doyle's helmet flew off his head just before he plummeted to the ground, head first. The regulation helmets are secured under the chin by a strap which is attached to the side of the helmet by a single press stud.

COVERED HEAD

Const. Doyle covered his head with his arms as he fell. His death was attributed to excessive brain damage.

The collision occurred between Const. Doyle's motorcycle and a car with Nova Scotia license plates, driven by Edward G. Whitehouse, 3025 Saanich Road.

Const. Doyle was travelling out of town along Douglas on the curbside lane. Cars in the centre lanes on both sides of the street were halted to allow Mr. Whitehouse, travelling towards town, and another car, travelling out of town, to make left-hand turns across Douglas, into roadside garages.

OVER TOP

Const. Doyle's motorcycle struck the front right corner of the car, throwing the young policeman over the top of the vehicle.

An eyewitness, Larry Rose, 3227 Linwood, was in the

Island Climb Ends in Death

Special to The Colonist

COURTENAY — An RCAF helicopter yesterday battled treacherous down drafts in rugged country 25 miles west of here to bring out the body of a mountain climber fatally injured as he fell and slid more than 1,000 feet down snow-covered Mt. Argus.

Dead is Harry Winstone, 33, of Crofton, a father of two. He was employed as a mechanical engineer by B.C. Forest Products.

Earlier, the rescue helicopter plucked two companions who maintained an all-night watch over his body at the 5,800-foot level of the mountain. Other members of the climbing party made a 16-hour trek, covering more than half the distance over rugged country in darkness, to summon help.

VICTORIA PAIR SAVED

Brought out safely were Paul Martinson, 1149 Oliver, Victoria, and Reginald Knott, 630 Foul Bay Road, Victoria. They were taken to Comox air base near here by helicopter sent from 121 Rescue and Communication squadron at Seaside.

Winstone was a member of the five-man party which planned to make an attempt on nearby Red Pillar mountain. He apparently was attempting to get out of the way of a rock rolling down the mountain when he lost his footing.

He fell 80 feet down a rock face about noon Sunday and then slid 1,000 feet in the snow. Other members of the party said he was probably knocked unconscious as he started the fall and suffered injuries which caused his death several hours later.

Martinson and Knott stayed with Winstone through the night while Syd Watts of Duncan, and John Weir, 630 Foul Bay Road, Victoria, started down the mountain.

At the base camp, near Tatsno, they were joined by four other members of the group who had remained there.

One of this group, Arthur Burrows of Chemainus, described the tragedy in these words: "It was awful—something we'll never forget."

Jack Weir of Ladysmith, Ronald Paver of Victoria, and Keith Morton of Courtenay, turned back at the 6,400-foot mark. They returned to the base camp set up by Burrows.

Five—all said to be experienced mountaineers—continued the climb. They were within 200 yards of the top of Mt. Argus when the mishap occurred.

COURT CROWD JEERS JUDGE

'I'll Never
Go Back'
Says Witness

MR. JUSTICE MANSON
... quizzes union men

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mid-interruption from the gallery and objections of counsel, Mr. Justice A. M. Manson questioned striking steelworkers one at a time Monday to decide whether they should be punished for ignoring his orders to return to work.

Before adjourning until today, the judge had examined eight of 17 men he summoned before him in B.C. Supreme Court on writs alleging contempt of court.

ONE EJECTED

He asked each why he did not return to Vancouver's Second Narrows Bridge to complete certain work as required in court orders issued to the contractors. The gallery had to be silenced several times, and one spectator was ejected.

FOR SAFETY

All the men questioned said they feared for their safety if they had to return to the job.

The Dominion Bridge Company obtained the orders after presenting evidence from engineers suggesting the south section of the $23,000,000 span might be in danger if work were not completed to the next support.

EIGHTEEN DIED

Eighteen steelworkers died a year ago last month when parts of the bridge collapsed.

Union lawyer Tom Berger objected when the judge asked Eric Guttmann what notice of the injunction the union gave him, and what conversation he had with union officials. He was overruled.

"YOU WILL BE NEXT"

When Berger later again interrupted the questioning, the judge told him: "If you continue talking you will be the next to will be facing me for contempt."

Tom Hurley, counsel for the men, objected to the questioning on grounds that Guttmann might be compelled to incriminate himself in answering.

"I am not worried about that," said the judge.

RESTORE ORDER

"You wouldn't be," said a woman spectator. Court officials quickly moved into the gallery to restore order.

"No, no," cried several spectators. One called out: "Speak up, lawyer."

Steelworker Isaac Hall said he would not return even if the strike were called off.

"That's your privilege," said Mr. Justice Manson, and reminded him engineers had said the bridge was safe to work on.

"They said the same thing a year ago," replied Hall.

A spectator who called out "Rah, rah, rah—three cheers for British justice," was taken out of the room.

Canyon Country On Royal Route As Tour Resumes

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—An idyllic holiday, bathed in sunshine and surrounded by privacy, ends at noon today for the Queen and Prince Philip.

The royal couple will fly back to this central British Columbia city to resume the 44-day tour of Canada that they broke off Saturday for a 56-hour vacation at Lake Pannask.

Their schedule after that calls for a scenic train journey down the Thompson and Fraser River Canyons, making 10-minute stops at the communities of Ashcroft, Spence's Bridge, Lytton, Boston Bar and Hope and 65 minutes at Chilliwack.

LONDON (CP)—The Sunday Times says the relaxed attitude to the royal tour displayed in Western Canada is adding a gaiety that was lacking in Ontario.

Tonight the train will be parked in a siding until Wednesday morning when it carries the royal party into New Westminster.

On the tour today the Queen will see scenery that ranges from dry fruit growing country where irrigation is used, to ruggedly beautiful river canyons and flat delta land.

After leaving Kamloops she will see a great dead orchard at Walhachin, now almost a ghost area, that was once an ambitious fruit-growing project established by the Marquis of Anglesey. More

Girl Mistaken About Rape, Man Freed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A 28-year-old man falsely convicted of raping a 16-year-old virgin is looking for the wife who divorced him because of the scandal.

William Lott walked out of jail a free man Saturday after serving 14 months of a five-year rape conviction.

The girl he allegedly attacked was given a medical examination recently. Medical authorities testified she was a virgin. When confronted with the evidence, the girl said: "I guess I could be mistaken."

Lott's first thought after he was freed was to find the spouse who left him. He believed she was still in New Orleans.

Lott, a barber college student at the time of his conviction, was pardoned by Gov. Earl Long. Authorities investigated the girl when she alleged recently that some Negroes raped her. Her parents have asked for psychiatric care for their daughter, who is now 17.

Lott had insisted he was innocent, but pleaded guilty to the rape charge in court rather than face a trial by a grand jury. Conviction by the jury could have meant a mandatory death sentence.

Deadly Bulb Takes Toll Of Cattle

Salt Spring Island and near Duncan is infested with an attractive flowering plant which is deadly to livestock. Dr. Adam Szczawinski, provincial botanist, said last night.

The plant, named "death canna," because it resembles the familiar blue canna wildflower, has already taken a heavy toll of goats, sheep and calves.

Horses appear to avoid the plant. Dr. Szczawinski said. The bulb and young leaves are deadly to live stock.

Ex-Champion Charges'Alibi Ikes' Sickening

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball is in an era of "the alibi artist and the chronic kicker," former Major League umpire Ralph ("Babe") Pinelli charged today, with so much fakery that it "makes anyone serious about the game sick to his stomach."

"There are too many players who would rather whine and scream than swing a bat," he asserted. "They are worse than a bunch of old women."

TED WILLIAMS
... 'real pro'I Called 'Em Strikes'

"For 20 years I did my best to enlarge the strike zone," Pinelli writes in True Magazine this week, making an admission which will start the hitters screaming all over again. "And I called pitches strikes if the slightest part of the ball shaded the target area."

There are in the major leagues what Babe describes as "sincere kickers." Among these he lists such as Ted Kluszewski, Wally Post, Harvey Kuenn, Jackie Jensen, Eddie Yost, Richie Ashburn, Ernie Banks, Hank Aaron, Carl Furillo, Gil Hodges, Johnny Logan and Don Deeter.

Leo Durocher—"Founder of the anarchist school of kicking."

Earl Torgeson—"One of the worst complainers."

Solly Hemus—"Master agitator and showboat kicker."

Eddie Stanky—"Worst kicker and staller I ever met."

Frank Thomas—"Chronic grinner."

Orlando Cepeda—"Walking powder keg."

Willie Jones Among Worst

Willie Jones—"Among the worst criers and a 'surveyor' who holds out his bat to show where the pitch went."

Walt Alston—"Grim, bitter type kicker."

Billy Loes—"A sulker."

Don Hoak—"Tantrum thrower."

Billy Martin—"Argument faker."

Hank Foiles—"Tricky alibi type."

Pinelli is proud of being described as the man who "made a tame cat out of Leo the Lion". He alleges that once Durocher called him a

"two-bit guinea" and invited him under the stands. Pinelli claims that when he followed Leo to the dugout, as if accepting, "Durocher began to show alarm" and Babe told him: "Me fight you?" Pinelli relates, "Why, you fresh punk, you couldn't punch your way out of a paper bag. You never won a fight in your life."

From that on say, Pinelli says, Durocher never again gave him any sass. But Babe may hear a lot of lip from Leo and the others after this blast—and in view of the fact that no longer owns the automatic thumb.

Charlie Boyd is unloading the long ball and, as a result, D & D Tire pitchers are finally getting some run support from their Senior Open Softball League mates.

D & D moved another step closer to vacating the cellar of Section II when Boyd provided the hitting power for a 10-inning 3-1 win over Halfway House Monday night.

It was Boyd's towering two-run-homer in the extra inning that broke up last night's game at Central Park. Boyd also drove in D & D's first run with a third-inning single that tied the score at 1-1.

Winning pitcher was Frank Bell, who, although allowing 11 hits, beat Stan Wargo.

Wargo gave up eight hits, pitching of Farmers' Don Lyon. Lyon gave up just a bunt single to fleet Bob Lowe as Farmers downed Morrison 5-0. In a second game, George Hotel trounced Halfway House 12-2.

Mrs. Marshall's Fish Tops Weekly Ladder

A 21-pound, four-ounce salmon, caught by Mrs. Jessie Marshall, claimed top rung at Sunday's conclusion of the eighth week of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby.

However, Mrs. Marshall's entry was not large enough to win her the weekly trophy. A 25-pound, 11-ounce salmon caught by Sid Upton made him the trophy winner.

Upton caught his fish at the Goldstream end of the inlet.

Only two names appear on the ninth week ladder that opened Monday. Largest is a 22-pound, five-ounce salmon entered by David Anderson. Joe Dill weighed one 3:10.

Agricultural Exhibit

Something New Added to All-Sooke Day

Traditional high-jinks marking All-Sooke Day this Saturday will have an added attraction, thanks to an RCMP ban on sale of tombola tickets.

An agricultural exhibit was added, organizers announced yesterday, and the name of the event has been changed to All-Sooke Day and Agricultural Exhibit.

This gives it status of an agricultural fair and permits the sale of tombola tickets. The director, George Hay, said that money from the tombola constitutes one-quarter of all revenue derived from the fair and its loss would be a "near-fatal" blow.

The All-Sooke Day program starts at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, with emphasis on barbecued salmon, loggers' sports and free fun for the expected crowd of 10,000 visitors.

The whoop-de-do gets its kick-off the previous day, however, with the All-Sooke Day committee sponsoring the third annual marathon run from Victoria City Hall to Sooke River Flats.

Winner of the marathon is expected to reach the fair grounds shortly after 7:30 p.m. A square dance will be held after the race and sideshows and games will be operating through the evening.

Three world champions will be seen in the loggers' sports. Danny Sailor will put on an exhibition of tree climbing which brought him the title. And Sooke world champions Jubiel and Ardell Wickham lead the field in the log-birling.

Other events highlighting the crowded program include log-rolling, chopping, bucking with hand and power saws, axe falling and the riggers' race against time up an 80-foot spar tree and down again. There'll be a woman's nail-driving contest, a baby show, and a dance in the community hall in the evening.

Esquimal MLA Herbert Bruch will officially open the fair at 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

It is estimated that 500 pounds of salmon and 300 pounds of beef will be barbecued over open fires and served all afternoon.

Sooke Community Association, which organizes the annual event, announced that parking on the fair grounds has been increased to accommodate more than 400 cars.

A spokesman also said the swimming area has been improved to provide safe bathing.

Small Eggs Cheap

Small eggs dropped three cents a dozen in Victoria yesterday, about half the price of large eggs.

Egg marketing experts say they are today's biggest food bargain.

The new price for smalls is 15 cents a dozen to producers and as low as 25 cents a dozen retail.

The low price is due to a big new crop of pullets starting production.

No Band At Civic Welcome

Ald. Austin Curtis, chairman of the civic royal visit committee, has withdrawn a request for the services of HMCS Naden band at the civic welcome to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip Friday morning.

When the committee made the request, he said yesterday, it was in order to have a band to play the national anthem, and at that time the committee was not aware that the military ceremonies on the nearby soccer field would already be in progress.

"I felt it was an imposition on the city's part to ask the band to come out merely to entertain the crowd while awaiting the arrival of Her Majesty, in view of the heavy commitments facing the band during the royal visit," he said.

City Giving Workers Morning Off

City hall employees have been given Friday morning off so they can see the Queen and Prince Philip at the civic and military ceremonies, and will start work at 1 p.m.

The city office is in line with council's request to Victoria merchants that they free their employees Friday morning.

The adjoining municipalities are expected to follow suit, except Saanich, which won't follow because it led, Saanich decided two of three weeks ago that the whole day would be a municipal holiday, and hasn't rescinded the decision.

Provincial employees in Victoria will have a Thursday afternoon off to see the royal arrival and the provincial welcome at the legislative buildings.

'Bad Idea' if It Isn't

Labor Court Fine If Wanted—Wicks

When labor and management agree voluntarily that a judge, labor court or other tribunal should be established to deal with deadlocks in contract negotiations, Strikes, Mr. Pearson said, affected everyone in the province, and "everyone is the loser."

Establishing a labor court without the voluntary agreement of labor and management would be imposing compulsion, Mr. Wicks said, and "until there is widespread acceptability, I think it would be very wrong."

Have to outrun Queen's Car

Civic Leaders' Move Looks Like Mad Dash

The army says it can do it, Ald. Austin Curtis told Greater Victoria civic leaders last night; it just hasn't said how it can do it.

Ald. Curtis, chairman of the civic royal visit committee, and the mayor and the Greater Victoria reeves gathered at the Dallas parking bay below Beacon Hill to rehearse for the civic reception Friday morning.

Almost immediately the entrance, and it appeared to question was broached again: "How are we going to leave here after Her Majesty and arrive at the soccer field for the military ceremonies before her?"

"I'm awfully sorry," said Ald. Curtis, "the army was going to have an officer here to tell us, but none has arrived."

Reeve George Murdoch said the royal car would drive slowly around the soccer field

Almost immediately the entrance, and it appeared to him that the civic leaders would have to run like mad across the hill.

"Well, the army says it's going to do it," Ald. Curtis said.

Winning that race may not be the municipal leaders' only problem. Her Majesty will leave the military ceremonies at 12:10 p.m. and those who have been invited to the provincial luncheon at the Empress Hotel have been asked to be there by 12:25.

Space Limited At Color Rite

Space for the public will be limited when the Queen presents her color to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Beacon Hill at 11 a.m. Friday.

Army officials were advising the public last night to avoid disappointment by turning out Wednesday to watch a full-dress rehearsal, which will be complete except for the presence of the Queen and the new color.

Bleachers seating more than 3,000 have been put up by the army on the two ends of the soccer field.

They will be open to the public for Wednesday's 10 a.m. rehearsal, but only guests of the regiment will be able to use the seats during the ceremony.

Only space open to the public on the big day will be the hillside rising from the east side of the field, which army officials estimate will accommodate about 5,000 people.

Douglas Street side of the field will be blocked off Friday by the royal dais and chairs for special guests.

500 MEN

More than 500 uniformed men will take part in the ceremony. Musical background will be provided by the PPCLI Drum Corps and the 50-piece band of the Royal Canadian Engineers from Chilliwack.

Reeve Chatterton said the work would have to be delayed as the council's budget for parks this year is fully committed.

Policeman's Son Remains 'Critical'

Condition of five-year-old David John Burdny, 1248 Reynolds, struck by a car while playing in his front yard Saturday, was described as "still critical" early this morning by Royal Jubilee Hospital officials.

Police said a car driven by Mrs. Eslie K. Brown, 5417 West Saanich Road, swung from La Salle onto Reynolds Road, about 1:40 p.m., went off the right hand side of the road and cut across a lawn where it struck the child.

'Problem Serious'

A ban on glass bottles might have left baby hungry at the Beaver and Elk lakes parks, so Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee yesterday voted merely to ban the leaving or discarding of bottles.

Considering a set of rules for the parks, the committee decided a complete ban on glass bottles was impracticable, because families needed to take milk bottles and babies' bottles with them.

TAKE OWN POP

"Organized parties often take their own pop in bottles, too," said Coun. George Austin.

"So do the guys who take beer, and then they throw the bottles into the lake," said city parks administrator W. H. Warren. "The problem is so serious I think we are justified in going to some lengths."

"This year, although we have cut down drastically on glass being taken into the parks, there have been some nasty accidents. Kids walk on the broken glass in the water."

Banned in the parks will be:

Picking flowers or removal or injury of any tree or plant.

Lighting fires.

Depositing any material on the land or in the water.

Leaving or discarding containers.

Hunting, shooting and camping.

Horses and dogs in picnic, concession and bathing areas, and elsewhere unless under control—on leash, in the case of dogs.

CAMPBELL RIVER — An inquest will be held here Wednesday into the death of Jack Hilton, 45, killed during the weekend at a Bute Inlet logging operation.

Manager of the operation, Mr. Hilton was helping truck drivers Boyd Pearce and George Clarke load furniture onto the boat Darrell D. He fell into the hold and caught his chin on the edge of a hatch. Witnesses said he died instantly.

Surviving are his widow and one child at the family's home in North Vancouver. The Hilton lived formerly at Royston, south of Courtenay.

Undertaking the research is a party headed by Dr. George Cottrell of Portland, Ore., aboard the cruiser Ciriba.

He located the ship in 1957.

After completion of investigations in Sydney Inlet, the group will go to Nootka in an attempt to locate the old trading ship Boston, sunk in 1803, without having a permit.

The poll will be held in the Carmorn Block July 16, 17, 18 and 20, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day.

Each fisherman will be required to give his name, the name and number of his boat and the name of the boat's skipper in the balloting, which has no voters' list.

Votes will be counted in Vancouver.

The second coin was sold to Bob Levy, a Vancouver coin dealer.

Several Vancouver coin collectors and dealers came to Victoria to bid on the two rare coins.

Prince Philip Cooked Hamburgers

Eager Trout Leaped Right Onto Dock for Queen

This is the text of press officer Esmond Butler on the royal couple's activities Monday at Pennask Lodge.

By EDMOND BUTLER

It has been a wonderful day and I think the Queen and Prince Philip have enjoyed it thoroughly. The Queen and Prince Philip got up early and directly after breakfast went riding with Col. Nicholas Van der Vliet and a cowboy by the name of Pat Wright. They rode through the woods and were out for about 40 minutes.

On returning Prince Philip caught several fish from the dock but he and the Queen were ready to believe the fishing was really good when one jumped right out of the water and landed on the dock near the Queen. Everyone thought it was a great joke and Prince Philip finally threw it back in because it was under a pound.

About mid-morning the Queen and Prince Philip set off in a motorboat to fish. At 1 p.m. PDT they and the household met for a barbecue lunch on Belle Island. Prince Philip had the barbecue going when we arrived and cooked delicious hamburgers, sausages, and later we cooked some of the trout we had caught, in tinfoil. Very good they were.

Several other guests joined the party uninvited. A red squirrel came and took all the food that was offered to him and fed from the hand. He stored the food in various places and then came back for more. Several whisky-jacks (grey and white birds) then arrived. After being given food, some by hand, they then stole some of the squirrel's cache and eventually made off with buns left unguarded on the table, much to everyone's amusement.

The Queen and Prince Philip have shown great interest in the wild life on the lake, the loons, the ospreys which have a huge nest on top of a branchless dead pine tree, squirrels and chipmunks.

Both the Queen and Prince Philip caught several good fish today as did members of the household, the staff and the pilots.

COURT CROWD JEERS JUDGE

Constable's Helmet on Hood

The crash helmet which failed to save the life of city motorcycle constable Earle Doyle Sunday night rests on the hood of the car involved. Helmet flew off Const. Doyle's head during the accident. Crash Helmet Tragic Failure

Crash helmets issued to city motorcycle police June 29 as a safety measure failed tragically Sunday in their first test when a 29-year-old constable sustained fatal head injuries in a collision.

Earle Doyle, father of three children, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 5:25 p.m. yesterday, almost 21 hours after the collision occurred at the intersection of Douglas Street and Francis.

Witnesses said police Const. Doyle's helmet flew off his head just before he plummeted to the ground, head first. The regulation helmets are secured under the chin by a strap which is attached to the side of the helmet by a single press stud.

COVERED HEAD

Const. Doyle covered his head with his arms as he fell. His death was attributed to excessive brain damage.

The collision occurred between Const. Doyle's motorcycle and a car with Nova Scotia licence plates, driven by Edward G. Whitehouse, 3025 Saanich Road.

Const. Doyle was travelling out of town along Douglas on the curbside lane. Cars in the centre lanes on both sides of the street were halted to let the two front cars make their turns when the motorcycle went past me on the curb-side lane," he said.
